BREAKDOWN BY DAVID L. $MONEY TRAIN$ WATTS · FUTURXTV & HHBMEDIA.COM

TWO SHOWS. ONE VERY LONG WEDNESDAY.

Future Games Show at gamescom was broadcast on Wednesday, August 26, featuring more than 40 games including 12 world premieres, alongside exclusive reveals and developer deep dives. FGS Live From gamescom followed directly after with 25 more trailers, four further premieres and news direct from the Koelnmesse show floor.

YOUR HOSTS

Nick Apostolides & Angela Sant'Albano

Best known for bringing Leon S. Kennedy and Grace Ashcroft to life in Resident Evil Requiem, the pair steered the main showcase. FGS channel presenters Nathan and Jules took over for FGS Live From gamescom.

The main show opened in the silliest way possible — a galactic Worms spinoff and the confirmation of a new mainline entry — before swinging hard into Capcom's Onimusha: Way of the Sword, which arrived days later.

From there the running order refused to sit still: soulslike shooters, a Starfleet city builder, a 4v4 hockey game, competitive gun-fu, a D&D tavern sim, and a cheerfully hostile game about trees that genuinely do hate you.

FGS Live leaned smaller and stranger — a frog-led tactical RPG, a terrifying breakup simulator, a castle on wheels, a game about launching your shoes — with Paradox and Toplitiz bringing the strategy heavyweights.

The pages that follow round up every announcement from both broadcasts in show order, with platforms and release windows attached. Trailers are on the FGS YouTube channel; everything shown can be wishlisted from the Future Games Show Steam page.
